To whom it may concern,

I had the pleasure of working with Ash Searle back in 2013-14. While I was working as a contractor for Macon East Academy in Cecil, AL, Ash took the initiative to approach me with the offer to work as an Intern. Upon approval by the school administration, I accepted his offer because we really needed the help! Ash certainly did not disappoint. He was always eager to learn something new. I quickly found that investing time towards instructing him paid nice dividends in productivity. Ash was a quick learner and hard worker. He took direction well without requiring too much time managing him. I would point him in the right direction and knew that he would get things done.

I think one of Ash's greatest strengths is his desire to learn. I found I need only give him a spark to ignite his interest and point him in the right direction at a conceptual level. He usually took it from there and would even do his own research. I really see him as a problem solver that looks for resources that will help him achieve desired results.

As far as learned skills, I worked with him on basic cabling and electrical techniques. He was introduced to networking basics including mapping IP addresses. He helped with basic computer hardware maintenance and repair. I'm sure he would expound on all the different things he picked up while working with me.

I knew Ash to be prompt, courteous and respectful. He was a good communicator and always let me know in advance what his schedule would be. He would update me on his accomplished tasks. He really did a fine job and added value to Macon East Academy. He was definitely a win-win for all involved. I am pleased to be a reference to anyone interested in contacting me concerning Ash.

Sincerely,
